

“ASML, a world-renowned leader in the design and manufacture of high-precision machines for the semiconductor industry through the photolithography process, is valued through a unique combination of advanced technological innovations and impeccable technical expertise. The systems it produces are crucial for current and future advances in the flea industry. In addition, ASML is continuously investing to meet its growing customer demand for performance, reliability and speed.”